WOULD GIVE BANK BANDITS "CHAIR"

Bill Introduced in State Provides
Death Penalty or Life Imprisonment

OTHER DRASTIC MEASURES

Senate Passes Bill to Raise Mortgage Tax Exemption From $1,000 to $2,000

(By United Press)

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 26—Convicted bank bandits in Indiana would go to the electric chair or face life imprisonment under provisions of a bill introduced in the senate today.

The measure would provide the severest penalty for bank bandits in the history of the state and was sponsored jointly by Senators Lechard of Versailles and Southworth of Lafayette.

Demand for stricter laws to protect banks of the state against the alarming number of bandit gangs operating in Indiana, during the last two years, was made by the Indiana Bankers' Association at the last state conference.

By a vote of 55 to 8 the senate passed the bill to raise mortgage tax exemption from $1,000 to $2,000.

More frequent use of the electric chair was recommended in another senate measure today. Senator Ball of Terre Haute introduced a bill to provide the death penalty for persons who commit a felony and use an automobile or another self-propelling vehicle, to escape.

Curbing the punishment of school children by teachers in Indiana was sought in a bill introduced in the house by Representative Smith of Lafayette. The bill would make it unlawful for any teacher to "strike" a pupil or otherwise administer corporal punishment until notice has been given the parent or guardian. The bill would also prohibit punishment of children by the teacher in the presence of other pupils.

The state board of health's sterilization bill, was brought another step toward passage in the senate, when a favorable committee report was made on it.

Bills in the senate were disposed of faster than they were introduced today. Only thirteen were thrown into the hopper, while committee reports were made on eleven, two were withdrawn and nine passed second reading.

Seven bills were put up for second reading and three were reported out of committee while only ten were introduced in the lower house.

IMPORTANT MEASURES TO COME UP THIS WEEK

Republican Legislative Leaders Clear Way For Introduction of Administration Bills

ARE IN MID-SEASON FORM

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 26—Republican legislative leaders today cleared the way for introduction of three and possibly more of the important administration measures at this week's session of the general assembly.

With their calendars cleared of numerous bills killed at last week's session, both houses were swinging into mid-season form and were ready to take up the legislative recommendations of Governor Jackson.

Administration measures which were scheduled for introduction this week were:

The bill for extension of the budget system to all state departments and institutions.

The bill for establishment of a state board of safety as recommended by the survey committee named by Governor Jackson to study chances in the state government.

The grade crossing safety program embracing recommendations made at the "safety conference" called by Governor Jackson last October to recommend means of cutting down the toll of grade crossing accidents.

After conferences between legislative leaders and the budget department Saturday, it was decided to introduce the budget expansion bill separate from the regular appropriations measure.

OLDEST MEMBER OF I. O. O. F.

Robert Dunn, Former Rushville Man, Expires at Muncie Sunday

Robert Dunn died Sunday evening at his home in Muncie, following a long illness of a complication of diseases, according to word received here today. He was an elderly man and was a former resident of this city. The funeral services will be conducted Tuesday morning at nine o'clock and the body will be brought to this city for burial in the East Hill cemetery, the funeral cortege arriving here about noon Tuesday.

Mr. Dunn was about eighty-six years of age and was the oldest member of Franklin lodge No. 35, I. O. O. F., of this city. He was admitted as a member in 1870 from another lodge, which means that his membership covered a period of fifty-four years.

NOVEMBER TERM OF COURT ENDS TODAY

Recess is Taken Until Next Monday When February Term Will Get Under Way

DIVORCE CASE ON FILE

Complaint to Foreclose Mortgage Filed Against Clarissa Newbold For $4,000 Judgment

The November term of court in the circuit court, came to a close at noon today, when business for the term was finished up, and a recess preparing for the February court taken for the remainder of the week, term, which convenes next Monday.

The November term was scheduled to end last Saturday, but on account of unfinished business, the court was held open for a few hours this morning.

In the case of Ada Williams Stevens against Chester O. Williams, a complaint on a note, and for which a change of venue was made and sent to Franklin county, the period allowed to perfect the change expired, and it will be tried here. It is set for February 13.

In the complaint of G. D. Searle and Company against Walter T. Vandament, a suit on an account, judgment has been entered for $112.69 and costs.

Two new cases were filed in court today. The Fletcher Savings and Trust company of Indianapolis is plaintiff in one action against Clarissa Newbold, and others, the suit being to foreclose a mortgage, and with the demand is for $4,000 judgment.

The complaint alleges that the defendants gave their promissory note to the bank for $3,000, and as security gave a farm in this county. The complaint demands that the mortgage be foreclosed and the farm sold in order to satisfy the note alleged to be past due.

In the other complaint, Flossie J. Irvine is plaintiff and James T. Irvine, defendant, the action being a complaint on a divorce. The complaint alleges that they were married in September, 1908, and separated in 1919, when the defendant is charged with leaving her. She also charges that during their married life, he failed to provide or contribute for her support. His whereabouts are unknown, she says, and asks a divorce on grounds of abandonment.

SUBJECT TO OHIO JURISDICTION

Indiana Busses Must Submit to Ruling, Attorney General Holds

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 26—Attorney General Gilliom today transmitted an opinion to Gov. Jackson and Secretary of State Shortmeier, holding that Indiana busses, which operate as regular common carriers are subject to common jurisdiction of Ohio public service commission.

These busses must pay license fees required by the state of Ohio, according to Gilliom. He ruled, however, that busses doing an occasional hauling or operating on private contracts are not subject to the Ohio law. The state will use all power at its command to protect busses operating on private contracts or doing occasional hauling, Shortmeier said, after a conference with the governor.

NEW AND EXCLUSIVE WAIST LINE MODEL

WALKER AND BOYD LOSE IN TRIAL AT NEWCASTLE

Arthur Jordan Given Possession of Ten Head of Cattle and $3,500 Damages

LOCAL MAN WAS INNOCENT

A verdict of $3,500 was awarded Arthur Jordan against A. P. Walker and John F. Boyd, and possession of ten head of cattle also given the plaintiff, by a jury in the Henry circuit court at Newcastle this morning where the law suit was heard all last week before special Judge Ellis of Anderson.

The evidence and arguments were finished late Saturday, and the jury recessed until this morning when the jurors were instructed by the court, and the case given over to them for a verdict.

The action alleged that Jordan employed Walker to go to the Jersey Isle to make a purchase of cattle for him, and provided him with $20,000. The cattle were to be kept by Walker and cared for until the proper time to sell, and they were to share in the profits. The evidence disclosed that ten of the cattle were given to Mr. Boyd by Mr. Walker, who it was alleged, claimed the ownership of them. Mr. Boyd was to feed and care for them, and share in the profits, and he was not aware of the fact that the cattle were owned by Mr. Jordan, the evidence showed.

The case was filed here and taken to Henry county on a change of venue. John A. Tittsworth was attorney for Mr. Jordan and Donald L. Smith and John H. Kiplinger represented Mr. Walker and Mr. Boyd.

THREE COMPLAINTS DOCKETED

Two Suits Against Oscar Reppert on File in Squire's Court

Three complaints have been docketed in Justice Stech's court, two being on notes and the third a suit for possession.

Oscar Reppert is defendant in the two action on notes, filed by the Mineral Supply Company of Ohio, with the demand being for $60 on each complaint. The suits are set for January 28 at one o'clock.

In the complaint for possession, Sarah Levi is plaintiff, and Horrell Smith, defendant. The complaint is for possession of a dwelling house and for $15 damages.

ODD FELLOWS PLAN A ROUSING MEETING

Wednesday Night's Session to Mark First Anniversary of Fire, First Thought a Calamity

WAS BLESSING IN DISGUISE

New Paraphernalia Will be Ready For Inspection and Drill Will be Given by Crack Team

Preparations are being made for a rousing meeting by the members of Franklin Lodge No. 35 I. O. O. F. Wednesday evening. Among the interesting features will be the inspection of the new paraphernalia, special music by the orchestra, a drill by one of the crack drill teams of the organization and refreshments which will be provided by a committee appointed to look after that feature of the entertainment.

The new equipment which has just been received will be on display and a part of it will be used in the display drill. Those who have inspected the outfit pronounce it the finest they have ever seen and the members are all being urged to come out Wednesday evening and pass their judgment on it.

A new set of by-laws has been prepared and will be up for consideration at this meeting. As there are some radical changes in certain sections every member is being urged to attend on this account.

It is also being pointed out that this is the first anniversary of the fire that destroyed the Odd Fellows building and a large attendance is desired to demonstrate that while the fire was a blessing in disguise, and that the lodge is in much better shape in every way than it was a year ago, before the loss.

The new part of the building which is practically completed will be open for inspection and a large turnout is expected for that reason. The new entrance in Morgan street will be used.

SPEAKS TO HIGH SCHOOL

The Rev. J. D. Waters of Zanesville, O., who has been conducting a revival at the Main Street Christian church, addressed the high school this morning on oriental customs and was garbed in the raiment of an oriental. He described the marriage ceremony in detail.

CALLED MEETING TONIGHT

All members of the Haymakers are requested to be present tonight at 7:30 o'clock. Business of importance to be brought up.

SENATE TIES UP BOTH COOLIDGE NOMINATIONS

After Prolonged Secret Conference, Stone's Nomination is Sent Back to Judiciary Committee

DELAYS THE WARREN CASE

(By United Press)

Washington, Jan. 26—The senate today tied up President Coolidge's nomination of Attorney General Harlan F. Stone to be a supreme court justice and Charles B. Warren of Michigan to be attorney general.

After a prolonged secret conference Stone's nomination was referred back to the judiciary committee for further consideration. This move prolonged action on the Warren nomination for the committee previously decided to hold up his nomination until Stone's nomination was disposed of.

The nomination of Attorney General Stone was held up until his critics determine what he is aiming at in the new grand jury proceedings against Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, recent independent vice presidential nominee.

Administration senators, after a long conference Saturday night at the White House, let it be known that Stone and his advisors believe that new evidence they have discovered in the Wheeler case warrants his re-indictment. They deny that it is a matter of "persecuting" Wheeler for his activities against the administration and say that a charge of conspiracy to defraud the government may be lodged against him.

The nomination of Charles B. Warren to succeed Stone likewise is meeting with resistance. The senate judiciary committee meets today to vote upon the nomination. It will be reported without recommendation or comment by the sub-committee, headed by Senator Borah Republican, which looked up Warren's alleged connection with the sugar lobby by investigations of 1911 and 1913.

MRS. ANNA TYNER DIES

Relatives at Milroy have received word of the death of Mrs. Anna Tyner, which occurred Sunday morning at 7 a. m. at her home in Greenfield. She was a daughter of George B. Elstun of Milroy and had lived in this county most of her life, and was well known here. The funeral services will be conducted Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the late residence in Greenfield.

LEGION MEETING

A meeting of Rush post of the American Legion will be held at post headquarters Tuesday evening. All members are urged to be present.

HAWKINS UNABLE TO GIVE BOND

Denied Writ of Habeas Corpus at Cincinnati Hearing

Cincinnati, Ohio, Jan. 26—Morton S. Hawkins was in jail here today in default of $30,000 bond. The indicted president of the Hawkins Mortgage and Loan Company of Portland, Ind., was denied a writ of habeas corpus late Saturday.

He immediately gave notice of appeal and was allowed 15 days in which to file it.

Hawkins sent several telegrams Saturday to friends in an effort to raise the bond.

TONIGHT TO MARK CLOSE OF REVIVAL

Special Services at Christian Church Will End With Sermon Lecture by The Rev. J. D. Waters

NINE ADDITIONS TO CHURCH

The Rev. H. W. Hargett Preaches Second of Sunday Night Sermon Series on "Lost: A Word"

The special revival meetings which have been in progress at the Main Street Christian church, under the direction of the Rev. Joseph D. Waters of Zanesville, O., will close this evening with a sermon lecture on the subject, "The Land Where Jesus Lived."

Interest in church circles centered Sunday in the close of the Centennial observance at the First Presbyterian church, but good attendance characterized the services at all of the churches.

The Rev. H. W. Hargett delivered the second sermon in the series on "That Which is Lost," at St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal church Sunday evening, before a large audience.

There have been nine additions to the Christian church during the week of protracted meetings, eight of which were by conversion and one by letter.

The sermon lecture tonight will be free, it is announced, but a silver offering will be taken at the close. A feature will be a representation of an oriental marriage, and a young man and woman in the audience will be selected to act as the bride and bridegroom. The Rev. Mr. Waters will supply the regular oriental costumes that are used in oriental countries.

The theme of the Rev. Mr. Hargett's sermon at St. Paul's church was "Lost: A Word," and the text was taken from John 6:33, "The words that I speak unto you, they are spirit and they are life," and John 15:7, "If My Words abide in you." The pastor said in part:

"The speaker is Jesus. He is asking us to consider the worth of His words and the danger that they may become 'lost words'."

"What is a word? Answer, a combination of letters, sufficient to express a thought. It is to thought what the body is to the soul—the agent through which it finds expression. All the varied kinds of business, all the arts and the sciences, all literature, all learning, all knowledge are dependent on words."

"Words are a revelation of character. 'By thy words shall thou be justified, by thy words shalt thou be condemned.' Of Peter, it was said, 'thy speech betrayeth thee.' With equal truth it can be said of every man. A profane man is known by his speech, a worldly man by his words, a scientist, an artist, a poet, a literary man by his vocabulary. A little man has a vocabulary of little words, of limited meaning, a larger man has a vocabulary of words that include not the temporal alone but the eternal."

"Our words react upon ourselves. They intensify the moods and feelings that created them. Give feeling a voice and it tends to create the atmosphere which another breathes and at the same time determines the climate of your own soul. Speak generously and the soul grows larger, speak maliciously and the soul shrinks into something smaller. There are words that bite like serpents and sting like wasps. We may think we have scattered the poison in the world without, in reality we have absorbed it into our own system. On the other hand there are

SAYS VISION IS TOO SHORT AND NARROW

Dr. W. A. Millis Says People Should Take Broader View of Church, at Centennial Service

LOCAL CELEBRATION CLOSES

Hanover President Declares Church Worker of Present Day are the "Merest Pikers"

The vision of the average person is far too short and too narrow, declared Dr. W. A. Millis, president of Hanover college, answering the charges that are commonly made against the church, at the Centennial services at the First Presbyterian church Sunday morning.

People forget, he said, that the church has more than a local significance, and that in recounting its accomplishments they do not go back far enough for their comparisons.

The Centennial celebration, which began Thursday evening with a sermon by Dr. Harry L. Grain of Frankfort, moderator of the Indiana synod closed Sunday night with another sermon by Dr. Millis.

Vocal solos by Harold Hufford of Greenfield and Miss Helen C. Jaehne of this city and a violin solo by Miss Mary Louise Wyatt were features of the closing service, and at the morning service Sunday, Miss Jaehne and B. F. Miller each sang.

At the night service the Rev. Gibson Wilson, the pastor, referred to the fact that the local church was providing a young man for the ministry, in the person of Merl Maupin, son of Mrs. Glen Miller who is studying in McCormick Theological seminary in Chicago.

A meeting devoted to reminiscences of the pioneers of the church was held Saturday evening and members of the congregation recounted some of the incidents that have become treasured church lore.

"We of the present day are the merest pikers in our zeal and stick-tuitiveness in the work of the Master," said Dr. Millis, at the morning hour of worship, in paying tribute to the early founders of the church.

He recited some of the hardships they underwent and described conditions under which the compared with the conveniences of modern times.

In his sermon, Dr. Millis enumerated the charges against the church—that it was not fulfilling its mission, that it lacked popular appeal, that it was devoting too much attention to local problems and that it was losing ground numerically.

In answering the false accusations against the church, Dr. Millis asserted that people who uttered such

COLD WAVE WARNING IS ISSUED BY BUREAU

Temperature Expected to Drop as Low as Five Degrees Above Zero in This Area Tonight

WILL LAST OVER TUESDAY

The weather bureau today gave warning of the approach of a cold wave, with the mercury falling to zero or below in the north portion, and from 5 to 15 above in this area during the night.

The official forecast stated that cloudy weather would prevail, and that the cold snap on Tuesday would be followed by generally fair weather. The drop was expected early tonight, following a sharp decline in the mercury all morning.

The present cold wave will last over Tuesday, according to the weather department. It is sweeping this way from Canada, where temperatures of from 20 to 30 degrees below zero are now prevailing. Possible relief from the cold spell here may be in sight by Wednesday.

Warm weather over the week-end, and especially Sunday, caused the frozen roads and ice to melt, making many of the highways in this section of the state in a bad condition, which will be made worse by the drop in temperature, causing the roads to freeze rough, and with a glare of ice.

INDIANAPOLIS MAY BUY WATER PLANT

Move Toward Municipal Ownership of Indianapolis Water Company in Prospect at Legislature

A BILL WAS IN PROCESS

Under Provisions Commission Would be Authorized to Advertise For Bids On Utility Service

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 26—A move toward municipal ownership of the plant of the Indianapolis Water company is in prospect at the present session of the legislature, it was learned today.

A bill was in process in the office of the public service commission under which the city of Indianapolis might purchase the property.

The bill, it is said, will be an amendment to section 72 of the act creating the public service commission, which gives the commission authority to fix rates and tolls of utilities.

Under the provisions of the bill, it was learned, the commission would be authorized to advertise for bids on utility service for any city, town or municipality, and would have the right to accept the lowest bid or reject any or all of the bids.

In the event the bids were rejected, the commission would be empowered to authorize the city or town to raise money by bond issue sufficient to purchase the utility and operate it under supervision of the commission.

Condemnation of the property would be made through suit brought by the attorney general of the state.

It is said the measure will be sponsored by Senator Quillon of Indianapolis as a blow at the Indianapolis Water Company for the rate increase it secured after carrying its fight with the public service commission to the federal district court here.

Provisions of the measure as it is now being drafted however, are broad enough to include all municipalities in the state.

words that are full of laughter and words that are full of tears, of sympathy, words that are full of sunshine that banishes the gloom and chill of winter, words that thrill like the sound of a trumpet and words that cheer and bless and brighten all the way. Such are the words of Jesus. They are words of faith and hope and love, words of duty and delight, words of peace and of power, of salvation and of service. Give these words large place in your experience and in your vocabulary and you will find that they are words of life.

"If consciously or unconsciously, you let them become 'lost words,' your own life will be infinitely poorer. Some losses we discover at once. We feel the wrench and mourn the loss. Some of life's greatest losses come so silently that we have no sense of loss. Ringing no bells, sounding no trumpets, great principles have departed and left us in private life, in public affairs, in business, in social relationship, without those fundamental forces which are found in those to whom the words of Christ are authority and life."

The sermon closed with Henry Van Dyke's story of the "Lost Word." When that lost word was found it brought peace, joy, love and service.

PLAN BUS, TRUCK REGULATION BILL

Rep. Hammitt Wants to Make Them Legitimate Competitors With Other Common Carriers

OBJECTS TO SENATE BILL

Under That Bill Buses and Truck Companies Would Have to Prove Necessity Existed

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 26—A bill to regulate common carrier motor buses and trucks in Indiana and to make them legitimate competitors with other common carriers without working a hardship on the bus or truck owners is being planned today for introduction in the state house of representatives by Representative John G. Hammitt, of Bryant.

Hammitt objected to the bill introduced in the Senate by Senator Moorhead providing for public service commission regulation of the busses. He said under the bill, the busses and truck companies would have to prove that a necessity existed for their operation. This would meet opposition from the traction and railroad companies which small bus operators would be unable, in many cases, to meet.

This was one of the chief objections raised in the last legislature against the bus bill that failed to pass at that time. Hammitt said the same objection would come up at the session against the bill that is now introduced.

Hammitt said bus owners believe that they should pay their share for the use of the state highways which they wear down in the operation of their lines and believe that some regulatory measure should be passed. They will oppose the Moorhead bill, however.

Although he had not his bill thoroughly worked out in his mind, he said he was considering putting the busses possibly under the regulation of the state automobile license department.

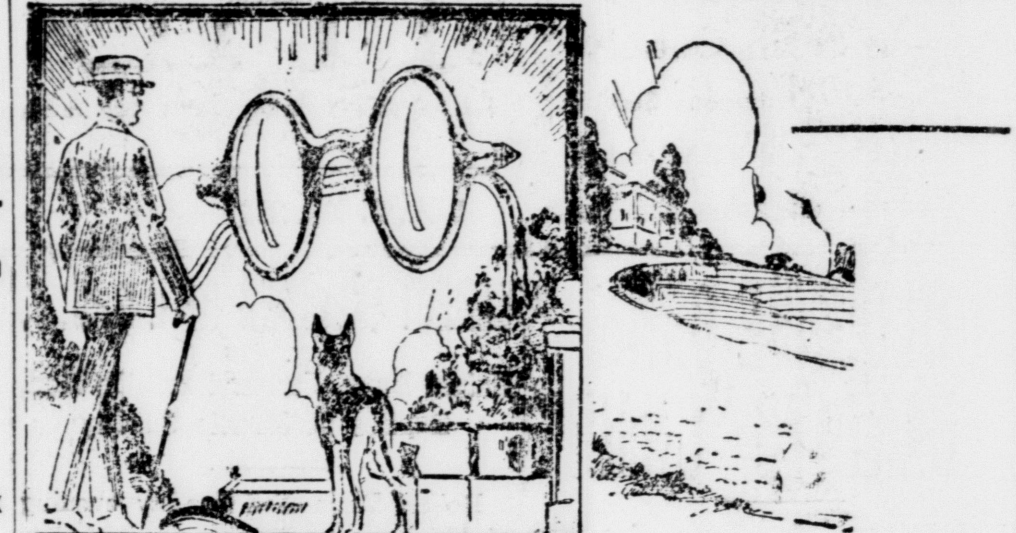

The bill he has in mind would probably increase the license fees to the bus owners or charge a mileage tax. The bus owners would certify their mileage of the route, the number of trips, and the size or capacity of their machines and be charged a rate on this.

Hammitt said he would have the bill worked out for introduction possibly in a few days.

There's nothing more convincing than the statement of someone you know and have confidence in. That's why this talk with Mr. Offutt of 321 W. Fourth street, should be mighty helpful here in Rushville.

S. G. Offutt, retired blacksmith, 321 W. Fourth St., Rushville says: "Knife-like stabs of pain made stooping work impossible. I couldn't get rid of the stiffness across my kidneys and my kidneys didn't act often enough. The secretions were scanty. MAY RECEIVE LIQUOR FROM COMMON CARRIER

Cannot Convict Liquor Law Violators on Such Charge, According to Ruling of Judge DuComb

CAUSE OF MUCH DISCUSSION

South Bend, Ind., Jan. 26—It would be almost impossible in Indiana to convict liquor law violators on charges of receiving liquor from a common carrier if the ruling of Judge Chester DuComb in city court here, is taken as a precedent, it was stated by attorneys here today.

Judge DuComb freed George Robertson in whose home police found two quarts of liquor. The judge held that no evidence had been introduced to show the booze had been received from a common carrier or to reveal the identity of the carrier, although Robertson admitted receiving the liquor from a farmer who made it.

The decision, it was said, throws upon prosecutors the responsibility of proving identity of the common carrier in contested cases. It could also require affidavits in the future to read "from common carrier or other carrier" because it is usually impossible to obtain evidence as to the source of supply.

It is now held by attorneys that the decision makes it impossible to convict on such a charge as was filed against Robertson, and that the ruling puts another block in the path of prohibition enforcement in Indiana.

TRACTOR SCHOOL FOR TWO DAYS

Will be Held at Oneal Brothers Under Expert's Direction

A county tractor school under the direction of Mr. Fulkerson, a gas engine and tractor expert will be held at Oneal Brothers' place of business Tuesday and Wednesday, its object being to demonstrate methods of operation and repairs and to explain construction of gas engines and tractors to rural tractor and gas engine operators.

The committee in charge is composed of Allen Blackledge, Claude Spillman and Paul McDaniel, and each man attending is required to bring wrenches, pliers and screw drivers for his personal use. Purdue was guaranteed at least 15 and not more than 35 men in order to get the school.

Mr. Fulkerson has had 26 years of experience in this kind of work and is well recommended by Prof. Wm. Aitkenhead, in charge of farm mechanics at Purdue.

Power of the Word:—For the word of God is quick, and powerful, and sharper than any two-edged sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow, and is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart. Hebrews 4:12.

A School Problem

An investigation of the mental ability of 5,352 children in the public schools of two Indiana cities was made and disclosed that approximately three percent was definitely feeble minded in varying degrees and another three percent was sub-normal in intelligence.

The school children of most communities will not vary much from this percentage of mental inferiority.

With six percent disqualified from receiving the benefits of a public school education, educators have a real problem to cope with in endeavoring to correct this defect in present education methods.

There is a small percent who are mentally superior. They offer no problem at all because they can be advanced without waiting for their class to move on, but there is nothing to do with the mentally deficient except to hold them in the same room, term after term, and they benefit little, if at all, from going over the same course of study repeatedly.

They require special attention, which can not be given by the public school teacher because of the size of the classes. If they do not measure up to the room average, they drop behind.

A teacher has little opportunity for devoting any time to individuals when she has a class of thirty-five to forty pupils, as is the case in some Rushville school rooms.

In some schools "Opportunity classes" have been started to meet the need for special training of pu-

Thus the public school is able to cope with a situation that is a menace to the normal child and it is also fulfilling its obligation to the sub-normal child.

Keep Hands Off

Any move on the part of the state legislature to disturb or disrupt the state department of conservation will be resented by people who have watched the progress of this department and are convinced that it is of real benefit to the state.

A few disgruntled violators of the fish and game laws have complained but the great body of honest sportsmen of the state appreciate the work that has been done to protect the fish and game of Indiana and to make hunting and fishing a real sport.

Before anything is done in the far name of efficiency, it might be well to make certain whether the department now in operation is less efficient than its substitute would be.

Legislators know that influences are at work to put this department out of commission, when it is one, along with the state highway commission, that does credit to the state, because political influence has been reduced to the minimum and more service per dollar is being rendered.

The absence of politics and the consequent lack of soft berths for politicians who never work may account for the effort being made in some quarters to interfere with the department's program.

Hunt's Washington Letter

BY HARRY B. HUNT
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON.—The aviation problem is one of the hardest puzzles the administration and Congress are wrestling with just now.

Experts' views are very divergent. All want development but no two want it along the same lines.

The lawmakers are beginning to discover that airplanes are not as cheap as enthusiasts have represented.

The cost of a plane is a mere bagatelle compared with the cost of a battleship or even a cruiser but there have to be dozens of times as many planes as battleships and cruisers and the planes don't last long.

Budget Director Lord complains of an overlapping of army and navy aviation activities, of the duplication of effort and expense. He wants a liaison system to eliminate this.

MAJ. GEN. PATRICK and Brig. Gen. Mitchell of the army air service favor placing both army and navy services under a single executive head, an army man. Rear Admiral Moffett of the navy air service says such an arrangement would take good care of the army but leave the navy unprotected.

Secretary of the Navy Wilbur agrees with Admiral Moffett but

Secretary of War Weeks disagrees with Gen. Patrick and Mitchell.

Mitchell really is the most whole-souled aviation man in Washington. Patrick and Moffett are just as enthusiastic but Moffett holds the air services to be no more than army and navy arms and Patrick considers the combined services a military arm in a general way.

Mitchell looks on air power as entirely an independent proposition.

SECRETARIES WEEKS and Wilbur take the same position that the tendency of the army and navy is to develop air forces of distinctive character, radically different in organization, methods, plan of operations and machine types.

The two secretaries argue thus: The army and navy have separate missions. The army fights on land and the navy on the water.

Land fighters have no business at sea, except possibly on their way to some other shore where land fighting is to be done. Sea fighters have no business on land, except occasionally temporarily, as when small forces of marines are landed.

Both branches of the service need aircraft—to help them, not to fight independently. To get just the kind of help they need the army commander should have aviators under his own command and the navy commander should have them under his command.

At The Castle

A small "bit" calling for consummate skill of acting and which takes up but a small amount of footage, is enacted by Dale Fuller in the Ernest Lubitsch production, "The Marriage Circle," at the Castle Wednesday and Thursday.

Miss Fuller, although busy working on another production, took long enough to rush over to the Warner Brothers studios to endow the portrayal of the small part with all the subtlety and pathos characteristic of this actress. As a result, Lubitsch believes this small bit will stand out as a vivid and impressive performance. The cast, includes Florence Vidor, Marie Prevost, Monte Blue, Harry Myers, Adolphe Menjou and Creighton Hale.

At The Princess

From a staid New England town came a beautiful girl to seek her fortune on the Broadway stage and her story is thrillingly told in "The Price of a Party" which opens tonight at the Princess theatre. The girl is Grace Barrows, played by Hope Hampton and she is the beautifully charming heroine of one of the best pictures that has come this way in many moons.

Harrison Ford, who plays the part of her lover is very well cast and his acting is unusually fine. Mary Astor, Arthur Edmund Carew and Dagmar Godowsky give an excellent account of themselves in their various roles. The picture was directed by Charles Giblin.

ECHOES FROM THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

(By United Press)

Indianapolis Ind, Jan. 26—An iron hand today rules over the deliberations of the state senate.

Whenever the senators show signs of letting up in their program of speed and efficiency, Governor Van Orman calls them back to the path of duty in brusque fashion.

"All in favor of this measure will say 'aye,'" the lieutenant governor shouted when a vote was being taken on an unimportant measure.

Two or three sleepy voices droned "aye." Nobody took the trouble to vote "no."

Van Orman eyed his charges with disfavor.

"Gentlemen! I said all in favor of this measure will say 'aye.' Now vote."

They did. There was a thunderous response of "aye's" and the senate went on with its business.

Senator Harrison later in the day rose to ask a question, and began to make a speech.

"Senator, do you wish to talk collectively or individually?" asked Van Orman.

"I retire, Mr. President," said the senator, sitting down.

And again the senate went on with its business.

The legislative attempt to regulate that stockyards odor that comes wafting into town on hot summer nights is viewed with disfavor by the Indianapolis Chamber of Commerce.

The board of directors of the chamber went on record as opposing the Ebaugh house bill which would prohibit the operation of packing houses, stockyards, glue factories and allied industries within the corporate limits of the city.

The board cited the case of the packing industry in Indianapolis which employs 8,000 persons with a total annual payroll of ten million dollars and annual railroad freight bills totaling $4,500,000.

In this, his latest vehicle he appears as Dave Deering, a happy-go-lucky wandering prospector, a lover of his horse Tony, and later a dog Duke, that he finds sorely wounded. From this point the story moves with intensified action, with many realistic scenes, one vivid feature being a real forest fire. It is an ideal vehicle for Mix.

"Teeth" was directed by J. G. Blystone for William Fox and was adapted from "Sonny" the popular novel by Virginia Hudson Brightman.

LIONS DROPPED BY TREEMEN

Many Farces, But Biggest One Was When Greensburg Eliminated Rushville in Semi-Finals

TOURNEY SCORES

Greensburg 32; Rushville 23.

Tourney upsets, marked throughout with a poor brand of basketball figured prominently in the first annual Sixth District basketball tournament held Saturday at Connersville, in which the host team retained the silver cup, defeating Greensburg in the final game 16 to 14.

Greensburg earned the right to play in the final game by upsetting Rushville's hopes in the semi-finals, and Connersville took Newcastle in a similar manner, with both games upsetting advance "dope".

Most of the basketball games were everything else but good basketball full of rough and tumble fighting, close defenses, poor basket shooting and scarcely little display of any flashy team work.

In the first game of the semi-finals, Connersville and Newcastle displayed the poorest kind of an exhibition, although it was exceedingly fast and held the interest until the final gun. Newcastle made only three field goals in the game, and Connersville made only two, with all of the rest of the points being counted from the foul line.

Both teams were handicapped by close guarding, as neither one could get much of a chance to take the ball down the floor. Connersville led 8 to 4 at the half.

Then the biggest farce of the day came when Rushville and Greensburg took the floor. The Lions put up good ball in the first five minutes and had Greensburg 12 to 2, and it appeared to be a walk-away. When Miller, Rushville's back guard, lost his head and struck at a Greensburg player who had landed on top of him in a fall, he was ejected from the game.

That was the thing to do and Referee Bills should be congratulated upon for his action. It only showed a great weakness on the Rushville team, which from then on began to play ragged ball, and Greensburg took advantage of the weakness and when the first half ended the score was 16 to 12 with the locals having the small margin in the lead.

Then in the last half Rushville kept that lead for seven minutes, and Greensburg passed them at 20 to 19, and from then on, they set the pace, and fought like demons with Sasser, their floor guard throwing the ball in from all angles, and breaking through for under-the-basket shots. The final count was 32 to 23, with Greensburg making most of their points in the last three or four minutes of play.

The line-up and summary:

Connersville is to be congratulated for coming through with a victory. After their hard scrimmage and fight in that Newcastle game, it only showed that they could withstand a second hard attack. After all, these tourneys are more or less a test of endurance, and if a team can hold up and fight, they are bound to win.

Greensburg also displayed the old fight that wins games, and a two point margin does not indicate the real strength of either team. When Greensburg played Rushville they put up the same brand of ball they did when they walloped Shelbyville. They were determined to win, and were "hot" on the basket.

The Lions will have another chance to see how far they can go with Greensburg as they play them in that city Friday night. With one defeat and one victory by Greensburg this season, the Lions should be in a mood Friday night to get back some of those points.

The biggest disappointment in the tourney was probably Newcastle, which played poor ball. They showed effects of a hard night before when they held Muncie to 12 points.

When Greensburg played Liberty in the morning game, Liberty came within a few points of winning, and Greensburg showed the poorest form. Their surprise attack on Rushville evidently showed that they were not playing at their best.

Greensburg beat Liberty 5 points; then beat Rushville 9 points, which looks like Liberty is 4 points better than the locals. It also looks like—well, you finish it.

Even Connersville was figuring on Rushville winning that tourney. It was a case of figures lying, that's all.

Good sportsmanship prevailed throughout the tourney. Connersville people extended themselves to show their hospitality to the visitors. The tourney was well handled. The two officials, Fred Bills and John Miller, handled the games to the satisfaction of all, and some of those games were hard ones to handle.

They Were Two of a Kind

The poorest official at the tourney was Coach Wann of Earlham college who was the official score keeper. He was the most unaccommodating and ungentlemanly person that could be employed in that capacity. If he is a sample of athletics at Earlham college, it is a big wonder that they ever get to first base. Alongside of him was E. Pierre Wainwright, sport writer for the Free Press of Connersville. Just what "official" duty he was supposed to hold down, no one knows. On account of visiting newspapers being present, and also because an opposition newspaper in his own city was present, he made it a point to see to it that the line-ups of the teams, changes in the line-up, fouls and the like were not passed along, nor even were questions answered. In other words they were two of a kind. Wainwright in his daily column, emphasizes in every other item, "true sportsmanship," which by the way should be practiced as well as preached.

Even a team that was playing on the floor, was not permitted an assist.

Star Recruit

John McGraw expects John Wisner, International League star, to bolster up the New York pitching staff. Wisner is a big, husky, right hander who once received a trial by Pittsburgh.

tant score keeper, because the two "What Ams" gave everyone to understand that they could take care of it. One game started in the second half and played for two minutes without either one of them sitting in their places, and the game was stopped to wait on them to come in from the outside.

It is a shame to spoil a good tourney, with other good officials by having a cross-word puzzle artist keeping score. It wouldn't have been so bad, if he had been deaf and dumb.

SIDE LIGHTS WINS OUT!

Ole Side Lights scored a victory. E. I. Higgs, the sport conductor of the Connersville News, who by the way was largely responsible for the new gym in that city, was the first to break the news of the tourney. He flashed an extra on the street at ten o'clock, and beat all other competition by a few hours, so the Free Press didn't profit a great deal by playing "hog" on the score bench.

The Richmond Item was represented by Mrs. Ed Keller who was kept busy keeping track of the points, but the rest of the scribblers saw to it that she got the line-ups and other information, regardless of the stonewall defense of the experts.

The next tourney will be held a year from now at Newcastle.

Tim Campbell, motor of the Shelbyville team, was present for some of the games. If his Camels had been entered, there would have been little doubt but what they could have sailed through because of the poor brand of ball played by the other teams.

DING BAT OFFERS FEW GOOD COMMENTS

Dear Hittin' 'em:

How about a rule to compel basketball players to wear boxing gloves?

What is the use to worry about one little old basketball game?

Remember the harder they fall, the higher they bounce.

Maybe it was the telegram Lakin got from Ft. Wayne just before the game.

We made more points in two games than any other team made in three. Who did the best scoring?

Didn't Davison look "scrumptious" at center?

Close observers of the game said Rushville was by far the best team and I am not quoting any authority from Rushville.

Experience is a dear school, but some people will not learn any place else.

Pat Miller on the back, he hates it worse than you do.

When Greensburg started their rally wouldn't it have been a fine time for Mack to have called time out.

Maybe it was the cello that did it.

When we go to Greensburg next Friday we will make Tarazon take Sheeta and all the rest of his wild animals and go back to the jungles.

Connersville was not rejoicing over the defeat of Rushville but they were tickled almost senseless over the fact that their pets would not have to meet the Lions in the finals. Deep down in their hearts they knew what the result of that game would be.

Score of the Connersville-Newcastle game was, one touch down and three drop kicks for Cville—13; one touch down and one touch back for Newcastle—8. Newcastle was penalized more than Cville.

Why not take the "bang" off of Greensburg—no use trying to take the "green" out of it.

Lenglen Plays in Form

Here is a late picture of Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen. She looks mighty well for a person reputed very ill, probably out of tennis for good. Perhaps her improvement in health is due to the fact that Helen Wills is in California, not Europe. Recently she made her first appearance in a singles match since she retired in June. Her health was so poor she didn't lose a game.

How to Learn to Run

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(Copyright 1925, by United Press)
(CHAPTER II.)

New York, Jan. 26.—Paavo Nurmi, the Finnish runner who won four events at the Olympic games in Paris last summer and who is generally regarded as the fastest and most perfect runner that ever lived is a very likeable chap. If he could speak English he would be much more entertaining than he is when he is forced to get it and send it through an interpreter. Nurmi speaks no more English now than he did when he was in Antwerp in 1920, but he understands more.

Nurmi never will make a teacher or a track coach. In the first place he doesn't believe in coaching, and also he has his own ideas and theories about running, but he maintains they are only his personal ideas and he does not believe that they would apply to general cases.

When asked what he would suggest to young American boys as the proper way to learn how to run, he replied he couldn't offer any lessons or he couldn't teach any one how to run.

He was willing, however, to point out why so many American youngsters can't run faster than they do.

"Your boys," he said, "go about it with too much haste. They burn themselves out too quickly. The most important thing is to have a body to carry you over any distance that you want to run. American boys seem to have the idea of getting speed before they build up their body to endure the strain of running. I ran for four years, principally for the amusement and the exercise I gained by it, before I got any idea that I could run. I trained for three years for the 1920 Olympic games and I ran for four years before I tried for fast time. In that long period of preliminary training, I built up my body and acquired a natural form. When the time came for me to try for speed I had both the mechanical and the physical essentials."

Nurmi was asked to explain why he selected a style of almost flat-footed running that is frowned upon by most of the best American coaches. It has been said that he made a careful study of styles and invented one of his own that was a combination of all the fine points of the form of other star distance runners.

"I don't know what my style is," he replied. "I only know that it is the form that came to me naturally when I was trying to get a stride and a style that enabled me to get the most distance with the least exertion. I didn't study any one's style and I didn't do any copying, as Kollemainen was the only great runner I ever saw before I went to Antwerp."

"The trouble with a lot of coaching," Nurmi says, "is that a runner is pushed along too fast. The coach teaches him in a month or so what it would take him a year to acquire by himself and he gets the idea that he can develop into a champion at the same hasty rate. Of course, if a boy had some kind of a defective style in running, he might never get along without some one to show him his error, but if he was serious enough about it and had the natural qualifications, he would work out the mistake himself without knowing it."

Veteran American athletic trainers have always maintained that mileage was the most important part of the training of any athlete. Some track coaches insisted that the only way to learn how to run was to run, and run and then run some more. Some of the most successful rowing coaches have followed the same theory in forcing some of their crews to paddle at least twenty-five miles. Nurmi has the same theory about mileage.

"If a boy wants to learn how to run he can only acquire that knowledge by running," he says. "I would suggest to young American boys who have a fondness for track sports that they decide upon the distance best fitted to them. They tell me that Joie Ray, one of the finest runners I have ever seen, wanted to be a sprinter and when he didn't succeed he turned to the quarter-mile and failing there he became one of the greatest middle distance runners."

"If you decide that you want to run a mile, go out and run a mile," he continued. "Run another mile and then another mile. Don't try for speed. At first regulate your pace so that you will be fresh when you finish. You can't develop natural style when you are tired. Even if you have to trot for a mile keep so that you feel like doing another mile. You should run miles and miles in that easy fashion until you feel that you could increase your pace, but don't get the idea too soon that you are ready to go out after speed. Every mile that you run without calling upon your reserve strength will build up your body, increase your endurance, develop your lungs and legs and will develop a free and easy style of running. I didn't try for speed until 1916, and it wasn't until 1919 that I really reached the point where I felt like pushing myself. Of course the development of an American runner would be much faster, because in Finland we have only a few months in which we can train, and in this country athletes can work almost the year around."

"My advice to American boys would be—Work slowly. Don't burn yourself out trying for speed. Build up slowly and you will be building well, and above all, if you want to become a runner, you will have to run and run. No painter ever became a master by using his brushes an hour a day."

As his ideas about running for are so simple and so fundamentally sound, Nurmi's theories about the other important factor of training—keeping in condition—are almost as simple.

The Webb high school girls basketball team won the cup here Saturday in the Rush County Girl's basketball tourney, and New Salem was the runner up, with the final game being a thriller all of the way, and the score 16 to 15.

At the end of the first half New Salem was leading 11 to 6, and took a big rally in the last half of the part of the Webb girls to stay their comeback, which came in the last two minutes of play. The score was 15 to 10 with New Salem leading, and it looked good for the Salem girls, when Webb began to toss up at center, making field goals in succession, then across with the one point, 16 to 15.

Several good games featured the tourney, and it was a success, with many of the girls loyally supported, and was as big as expected.

Rheumati

"Good-bye old crutch!"

THERE is positively no longer any excuse for suffering the agonies of rheumatism! Especially in the autumn of your life, when the vital organs weaken, impurities multiply and linger in the muscles and joints, as never before. It is now, just now, when you cannot afford to guess. No day returns!

Here is a joyous fact which can mean to you a fond farewell forever to all the miseries, the tortures, the body-twisting pains that you have suffered from the demon of rheumatism. It is a fact that rheumatism means "blood poverty." It is a fact with the increase of red-cells in your blood, impurities are destroyed. It is a fact that S.S.S. will help Nature build these red-blood-cells! S.S.S. is one of the most powerful blood cleansers in existence. Its results in thousands of rheumatic cases have been nothing short of amazing! The medicinal ingredients of S.S.S. are purely vegetable. This is very important to remember! What can be more inspiring, more wonderful than to see the shackles of pain released from your struggling body, swellings, lingering pains, stiffness of joints and muscles all disappear; your stomach made strong; your face pink with the old sweet-heart glow; your blood enriched and your cheeks more plump as they used to be. You can do it! Take S.S.S., the great destroyer of rheumatic impurities.

S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

VAMPS ARE OUT OF DATE; MEN WANT OLD-FASHIONED, PLAIN GIRLS

By HEDDA HOYT
(Written for United Press)

New York, Jan. 26—Clothes don't make the vamp! Anyone alighting under that impression would do well to walk up Broadway some bright night and look at the girls in vampish clothes who are walking alone. Sensibly dressed girls trip along on the arms of their Valentinos as the vamps look on.

Times are changed and the day of the vamp is passed. A man looks for more than a beauty spot and carmine lips when he feels the urge of sitting at a soda fountain sharing a soda with a dame. The doll with peroxide hair and baby stare and her competitor, the dreamy-eyed mysterious lady of the moving picture type are out of luck these days. "Like begets like" and men are looking for girls who are ordinary human beings like themselves. Girls with sensible clothes and with a knowledge of things that are going on in the world. Baby talk has no lure for them nor do drooping eyes gazing through mascaraed lashes.

Over half of the unescorted girls on Broadway are of the vamp type. And it is quite true that vamps are "made"—they do not grow that way. Make-up and eccentric dressing make the vamp and this being the case, it seems odd that girls do not unvamp and get in step with the regular girls who are copying all the men. The most popular girl today is not an over-dressed one. She wears not sable but muskrat in natural color. Her hat is small and free of trimming and her shoes and hosiery are sensible looking, and not mere satin and cobweb. She has no poses. Neither a lisp nor an accent. In other words, she is a plain everyday American girl! And girls of the vamp type would do well to give her the once-over!

Hats have a sudden way of changing their trimming in mid-season. Just now one sees the trimming placed on the very top of the crown, the trimming either a little perky bow of ribbon, a tassel or a bunch of tiny ostrich plumes. While such a trim looks rather eccentric, it is very chic on some of the bobbed hair girls of youthful types.

Shoes with contrasting heels are being worn for evening wear. The popular silver brocade slipper will have silver kid heels or bright colored heels of kid which match the frock with which it is worn.

Winter has not cast gloom over the Spanish shawl. They are wearing them under the fur coat for evening. At the theatres one removes the fur wrap and sits draped in a vivid shawl. Small shawls of Spanish type are also popular. There is a decided vogue for the all white shawl worn with the white gown.

Evening corsages are either placed on the left shoulder or 'on the hip.' Orchids, red roses and poinsettias are the favorites just now.

At the Sunday night concerts of the Metropolitan the stars appear in evening gowns rather than in costumes. It is interesting to see what sort of dress these singers choose. The singers this week included Jeritza, Alda, Penselle, Eaton and others. Jeritza who is very tall and has a mass of golden hair chose a V-shaped neckline, the sole ornamentation being diamond-shaped medallions placed on either hip to suggest a waistline.

Poincelle, one of the tallest women of the Opera and also the youngest, wore a dress suggesting the Directoire. It was made of black velvet with a tight-fitting basque and a skirt which was distended at the hips and of floor length. The neck of the gown was finished at the rear with a wide upstanding collar of silver lace.

Miss Easton wore an orange colored frock of taffeta with a tight basque and a three-tiered, ruffled skirt. Each ruffle of the skirt, was trimmed with appliques of gold lace and the gown reminded one of those of Dresden doll. Mme. Alda's frock was perhaps the most extreme worn by the Opera celebrities. It was of black velvet with a square-cut neckline and seen from the front it was simple indeed but as she left the stage the back view caused many to gasp. There was a peacock motif embroidered from the waistline to the hem in bright gold. The feathers of the peacock spread gracefully over the entire back of the skirt ending in the long train. This gown was split up the front displaying oyster white hosiery and black satin slippers.

TO VISIT COMMANDERY

S. GLENN YOUNG IS KILLED

Herrin Townspeople See Passing of Warfare With His Death

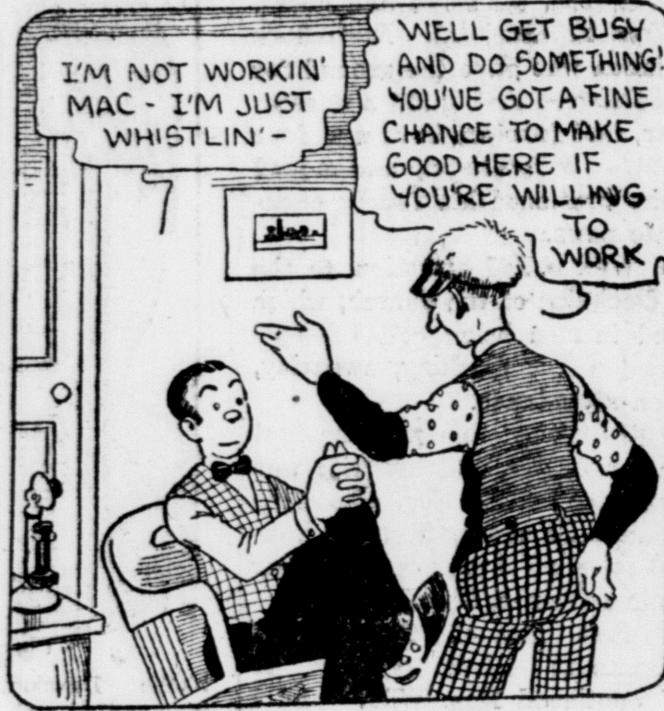

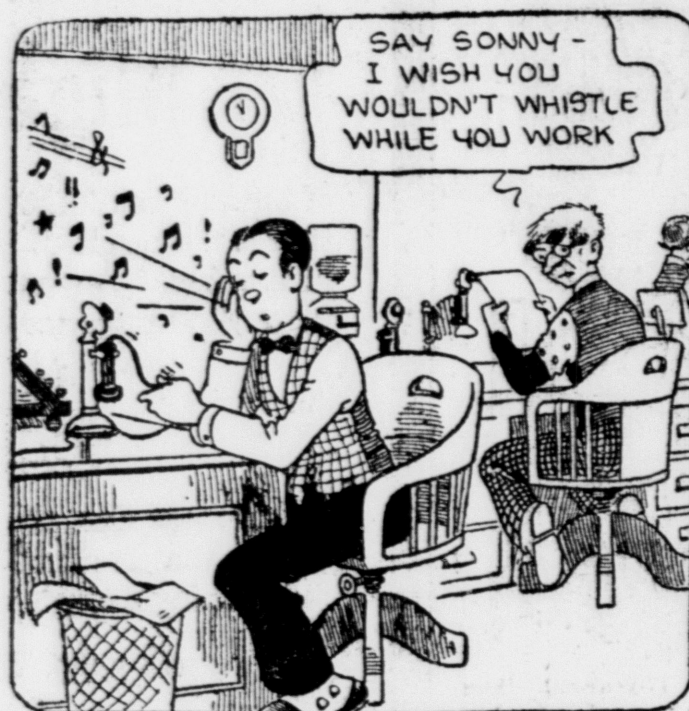

Herrin, Ill., Jan. 26—Bitter warfare in Herrin—the red town of bloody Williamson county—ceased with the passing of S. Glenn Young, the stormy petrel of the Klan ranks, in the opinion of many local townspeople.

Not only did Young go down before the bullets of hate, but one of the leaders of the opposition—Ore Thomas—also is dead.

Several hundred filed by Young's body in the morgue yesterday paying tribute to the zealous leader of the hooded organization.

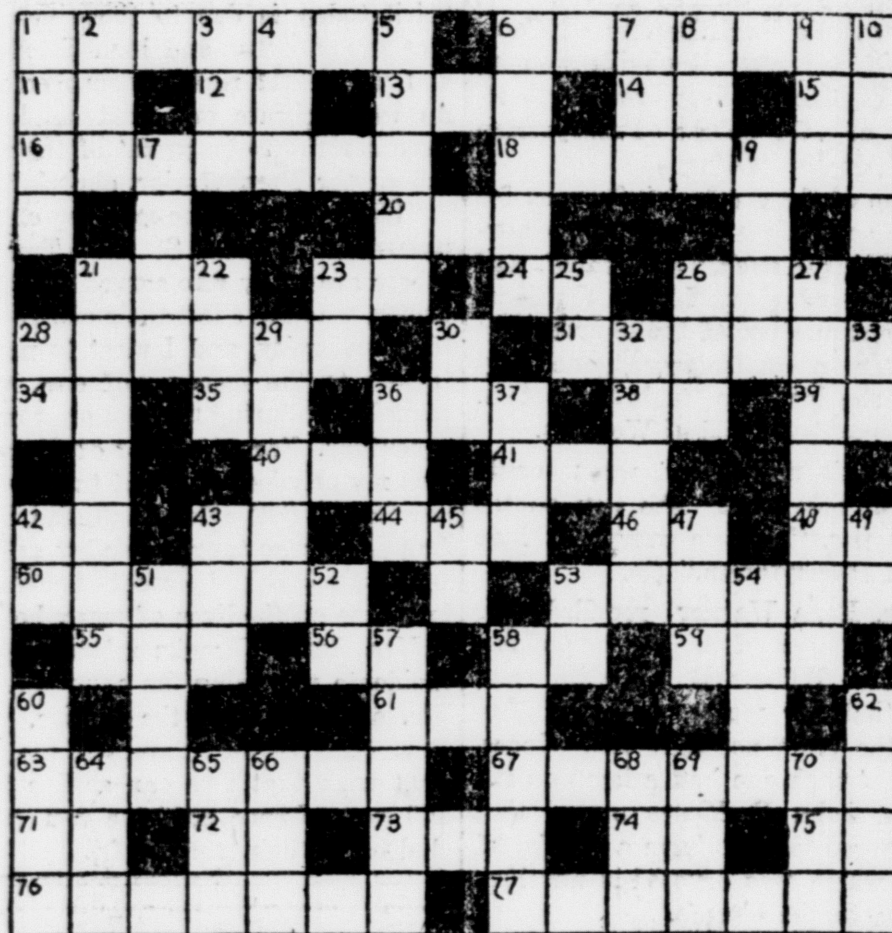

Two other Klansmen—T. D. Forbes and Homer Warner, were also killed in the gun battle.

9 Years Success in Rushville

Pulling together

In this busy industrial and agricultural region that stretches from the Great Lakes to the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers, the Big Four Route serves 600 communities.

Our day's work is to provide dependable, efficient and economical transportation service, in order that these communities may successfully compete in the Nation's markets and share fully in the Nation's prosperity.

Our welfare and yours are inseparably linked. Neither of us can grow without the other. We can't shift burdens to each other; we must shoulder them together.

The cost of providing railroad service—like the cost of any other necessary of life—is paid by the user. Legislation that unnecessarily increases the cost of railroad service becomes a burden on the public—either in higher rates or in deteriorated service.

We can't lift ourselves by our bootstraps.

COMPARE YOUR BILLS

Some folks are led to believe that great savings can be effected by buying at no-service stores. All we ask is, compare your bills, price for price, quality for quality, SERVICE for SERVICE. We believe that you will find that the cash saving has been practically nothing, that a great many times you have been disappointed in the quality of the goods bought, and besides you have missed the benefit of the advantages we offer in the way of service.

STANDARD NUT MARGARINE

Your choice of Colored or Uncolored

Colored Standard overcomes all of the prejudice that folks used to have against oleo. You can't tell it from creamery butter. The uncolored is just the same without the coloring.

SAYS VISION IS TOO SHORT AND NARROW

statements were too narrow and too short in their vision.

Dr. Millis pointed out that in 1890 only fourteen percent of the adult population belonged to church and that now forty-five percent of the total population of the United States were active members of some Christian church.

He also called attention to the fact that the church was not exclusive or aristocratic as has been charged, but that it was just the opposite—that its doors were open to everyone, regardless of class or station in life.

Dr. Millis enumerated the many activities of the church in extending the kingdom of God on earth—hospitals, colleges and home and foreign missions.

Eighty percent of the educational institutions offering a strictly college education are supported by the church, he said. How the negro problem, the mountaineer problem, the immigrant problem and the extension of Christianity in foreign lands are being met was recounted to show that the church was not failing, but was active and alert to its mission.

"The church is the body of Christ," Dr. Millis stated. "It is His legs and His feet, His arms, eyes and ears, and it was established to carry on the work that He started."

"It is here to establish justice and mercy and to heal physically, intellectually and spiritually."

Letters from former pastors and members temporarily away were read at the Saturday evening meeting, including the following:

The Rev. J. F. Cowling, New Lexington, O.; John S. Abercrombie of Miami, Florida, a grandson of Dr. Horatio Gates Sexton, the first person to unite with the church by confession of faith; the Rev. D. Ira Lambert, head of the religious education department of Tulsa (Okla.) university; J. L. Cowing, in Miami, Florida for the winter; the Rev. Walter L. Kunkel of Cincinnati, and Mrs. Kunkle, and the Rev. Walter H. Reynolds, pastor of the Liberty Presbyterian church.

After two numbers by Miss Jaehne "Love's Old Sweet Song" and "When Yoo and I were Young Maggie" which were very appropriate to the occasion Mrs. Phil Wilk, who wrote the historical sketch in the souvenir Centennial program, related some incidents regarding the early history of the church, which she had not included in the sketch.

Mrs. Wilk said that the pioneers were evidently hungry for The Word, as one family living ten miles up

Mourns Bandit

Nellie Dawson, 17-year-old Des Moines (Ia.) girl, is mourning for her bandit husband, William E. Wright. They had been married just two weeks when he held up a bank in New Orleans and killed a policeman. He died in Mobile, Ala., in a gun battle with detectives. Nellie now is in jail in New Orleans, but it is thought she will be sent back to her people.

spirit today is due to these men of strong character and high intellect, and we should revere their memory. As we celebrate our Centennial, we have a right to be proud of the record of the Presbyterian church."

"While I revere the memory of the pioneers," stated S. L. Trabue, "there are many who served more recently, who have left their mark on the community, and I want to pay a tribute to the memory of one who served well during the last quarter of a century. For a number of years it was my privilege to sit at the feet of our friend, that splendid woman, Mrs. Lon Link, who taught Sunday school faithfully and had a most beneficial influence on the lives of many boys."

Mrs. James Brooks related some incidents regarding the early church life, and in closing the service, the Rev. Mr. Wilson expressed the devout wish that "we can so live that 100 years hence someone can say, God bless their memory."

WOULD GIVE BANK BANDITS "CHAIR"

Bill introduced in State Provides
Death Penalty or Life Imprisonment

OTHER DRASTIC MEASURES

Senate Passes Bill to Raise Mortgage Tax Exemption From $1,000 to $2,000

(By United Press)

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 26—Convicted bank bandits in Indiana would go to the electric chair or face life imprisonment under provisions of a bill introduced in the senate today.

The measure would provide the severest penalty for bank bandits in the history of the state and was sponsored jointly by Senators Leachard of Versailles and Southworth of Lafayette.

Demand for stricter laws to protect banks of the state against the alarming number of bandit gangs operating in Indiana, during the past two years, was made by the Indiana Bankers' Association at the last state conference.

By a vote of 55 to 8 the senate passed the bill to raise mortgage tax exemption from $1,000 to $2,000.

More frequent use of the electric chair was recommended in another senate measure today. Senator Batt of Terre Haute introduced a bill to provide the death penalty for persons who commit a felony and use an automobile or another self-propelling vehicle, to escape.

Curbing the punishment of school children by teachers in Indiana was sought in a bill introduced in the house by Representative Smith of Lafayette. The bill would make it unlawful for any teacher to "strike" a pupil or otherwise administer corporal punishment until notice has been given the parent or guardian. The bill would also prohibit punishment of children by the teacher in the presence of other pupils.

The state board of health's sterilization bill, was brought another step toward passage in the senate, when a favorable committee report was made on it.

Bills in the senate were disposed of faster than they were introduced today. Only thirteen were thrown into the hopper, while committee reports were made on eleven, two were withdrawn and nine passed second reading.

Seven bills were put up for second reading and three were reported out of committee while only ten were introduced in the lower house.

IMPORTANT MEASURES TO COME UP THIS WEEK

Republican Legislative Leaders Clear Way For Introduction of Administration Bills

ARE IN MID-SEASON FORM

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 26—Republican legislative leaders today cleared the way for introduction of three and possibly more of the important administration measures at this week's session of the general assembly.

With their calendars cleared of numerous bills killed at last week's session, both houses were swinging into mid-season form and were ready to take up the legislative recommendations of Governor Jackson.

Administration measures which were scheduled for introduction this week were:

The bill for extension of the budget system to all state departments and institutions.

The bill for establishment of a state board of safety as recommended by the survey committee named by Governor Jackson to study changes in the state government.

The grade crossing safety program embracing recommendations made at the "safety conference" called by Governor Branch last October to recommend means of cutting down the toll of grade crossing accidents.

After conferences between legislative leaders and the budget department Saturday, it was decided to introduce the budget expansion bill separate from the regular appropriations measure.

OLDEST MEMBER OF I. O. U. F.

Robert Dunn, Former Rushville Man, Expires at Muncie Sunday

Robert Dunn died Sunday evening at his home in Muncie, following a long illness of a complication of diseases, according to word received here today. He was an elderly man and was a former resident of this city. The funeral services will be conducted Tuesday morning at nine o'clock and the body will be brought to this city for burial in the East Hill cemetery, the funeral cortege arriving here about noon Tuesday.

Mr. Dunn was about eighty-six years of age and was the oldest member of Franklin lodge No. 35, I. O. O. F., of this city. He was admitted as a member in 1870 from another lodge, which means that his membership covered a period of fifty-four years.

NOVEMBER TERM OF COURT ENDS TODAY

Recess is Taken Until Next Monday When February Term Will Get Under Way

DIVORCE CASE ON FILE

Complaint to Foreclose Mortgage Filed Against Clarissa Newbold For $4,000 Judgment

The November term of court in the circuit court, came to a close at noon today, when business for the term was finished up, and a recess preparing for the February court taken for the remainder of the week, term, which convenes next Monday.

The November term was scheduled to end last Saturday, but on account of unfinished business, the court was held open for a few hours this morning.

In the case of Ada Williams Stevens against Chester O. Williams, a complaint on a note, and for which a change of venue was made and sent to Franklin county, the period allowed to perfect the change expired, and it will be tried here. It is set for February 13.

In the complaint of G. D. Searle and Company against Walter T. Vandament, a suit on an account, judgment has been entered for $112.69 and costs.

Two new cases were filed in court today. The Fletcher Savings and Trust company of Indianapolis is plaintiff in one action against Clarissa Newbold, and others, the suit being to foreclose a mortgage, and with the demand is for $4,000 judgment.

The complaint alleges that the defendants gave their promissory note to the bank for $3,000, and as security gave a farm in this county. The complaint demands that the mortgage be foreclosed and the farm sold in order to satisfy the note alleged to be past due.

In the other complaint, Flossie J. Irvine is plaintiff and James T. Irvine, defendant, the action being a complaint on a divorce. The complaint alleges that they were married in September, 1908, and separated in 1919, when the defendant is charged with leaving her. She also charges that during their married life, he failed to provide or contribute to her support. His whereabouts are unknown, she says, and asks a divorce on grounds of abandonment.

SUBJECT TO OHIO JURISDICTION

Indiana Busses Must Submit to Ruling, Attorney General Holds

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 26—Attorney General Gilliom today transmitted an opinion to Gov. Jackson and Secretary of State Shortmeier, holding that Indiana busses which operate as regular common carriers are subject to common jurisdiction of Ohio public service commission.

These busses must pay license fees required by the state of Ohio, according to Gilliom. He ruled, however, that busses doing an occasional hauling or operating on private contracts are not subject to the Ohio law. The state will use all power at its command to protect busses operating on private contracts or doing occasional hauling. Shortmeier said, after a conference with the governor.

NEW AND EXCLUSIVE WAIST LINE MODEL

WALKER AND BOYD LOSE IN TRIAL AT NEWCASTLE

Arthur Jordan Given Possession of Ten Head of Cattle and $3,500 Damages

LOCAL MAN WAS INNOCENT

A verdict of $3,500 was awarded Arthur Jordan against A. P. Walker and John F. Boyd, and possession of ten head of cattle also given the plaintiff, by a jury in the Henry circuit court at Newcastle this morning when the law suit was heard all last week before special Judge Ellis of Anderson.

The evidence and arguments were finished last Saturday, and the jury recessed until this morning when the jurors were instructed by the court, and the case given over to them for a verdict.

The action alleged that Jordan employed Walker to go to the Jersey side to make a purchase of cattle for him, and provided him with $20,000. The cattle were to be kept by Walker and cared for until the proper time to sell, and they were to share in the profits. The evidence disclosed that ten of the cattle were given to Mr. Boyd by Mr. Walker, who it was alleged, claimed the ownership of them. Mr. Boyd was to feed and care for them, and share in the profits, and he was not aware of the fact that the cattle were owned by Mr. Jordan, the evidence showed.

The case was filed here and taken to Henry county on a change of venue. John A. Fitzworth was attorney for Mr. Jordan and Donald L. Smith and John H. Kiplinger represented Mr. Walker and Mr. Boyd.

THREE COMPLAINTS DOCKETED

Two Suits Against Oscar Reppert on File in Squire's Court

Three complaints have been docketed in Justice Steel's court, two being on notes and the third a suit for possession.

Oscar Reppert is defendant in the two action on notes, filed by the Mineral Supply Company of Ohio, with the demand being for $60 on each complaint. The suits are set for January 28 at one o'clock.

In the complaint for possession, Sarah Levi is plaintiff, and Horrell Smith, defendant. The complaint is for possession of a dwelling house and for $15 damages.

ODD FELLOWS PLAN A ROUSING MEETING

Wednesday Night's Session to Mark First Anniversary of Fire, First Thought a Calamity

WAS BLESSING IN DISGUISE

New Paraphernalia Will be Ready For Inspection and Drill Will be Given by Crack Team

Preparations are being made for a rousing meeting by the members of Franklin lodge No. 35 I. O. O. F. Wednesday evening. Among the interesting features will be the inspection of the new paraphernalia, special music by the orchestra, a drill by one of the crack drill teams of the organization and refreshments which will be provided by a committee appointed to look after that feature of the entertainment.

The new equipment which has just been received will be on display and a part of it will be used in the display drill. Those who have inspected the outfit pronounce it the finest they have ever seen and the members are all being urged to come out Wednesday evening and pass their judgment on it.

A new set of by-laws has been prepared and will be up for consideration at this meeting. As there are some radical changes in certain sections every member is being urged to attend on this account.

It is also being pointed out that this is the first anniversary of the fire that destroyed the Odd Fellows building and a large attendance is desired to demonstrate that while the fire was a blessing in disguise, and that the lodge is in much better shape in every way than it was a year ago, before the loss.

The new part of the building which is practically completed will be open for inspection and a large turnout is expected for that reason. The new entrance in Morgan street will be used.

SPEAKS TO HIGH SCHOOL

The Rev. J. D. Waters of Zanesville, O., who has been conducting a revival at the Main Street Christian church, addressed the high school this morning on oriental customs and was garbed in the raiment of an oriental. He described the marriage ceremony in detail.

SENATE TIES UP BOTH COOLIDGE NOMINATIONS

After Prolonged Secret Conference, Stone's Nomination is Sent Back to Judiciary Committee

DELAYS THE WARREN CASE

(By United Press)

Washington, Jan. 26—The senate today tied up President Coolidge's nomination of Attorney General Harlan F. Stone to be a supreme court justice and Charles B. Warren of Michigan to be attorney general.

After a prolonged secret conference Stone's nomination was referred back to the judiciary committee for further consideration. This move prolonged action on the Warren nomination for the committee previously decided to hold up his nomination until Stone's nomination was disposed of.

The nomination of Attorney General Stone was held up until his critics determine what he is aiming at in the new grand jury proceedings against Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, recent independent vice presidential nominee.

Administration senators, after a long conference Saturday night at the White House, let it be known that Stone and his advisors believe that new evidence they have discovered in the Wheeler case warrants his re-indictment. They deny that it is a matter of "persecuting" Wheeler for his activities against the administration and say that a charge of conspiracy to defraud the government may be lodged against him.

The nomination of Charles B. Warren to succeed Stone likewise is meeting with resistance. The senate judiciary committee meets today to vote upon the nomination. It will be reported without recommendation or comment by the sub-committee, headed by Senator Borah Republican, which looked up Warren's alleged connection with the sugar lobby investigations of 1911 and 1913.

MRS. ANNA TYNER DIES

Relatives at Milroy have received word of the death of Mrs. Anna Tyner, which occurred Sunday morning at 7 a. m. at her home in Greenfield. She was a daughter of George B. Elston of Milroy and had lived in this county most of her life, and was well known here. The funeral services will be conducted Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the late residence in Greenfield.

LEGION MEETING

A meeting of Rush post of the American Legion will be held at post headquarters Tuesday evening. All members are urged to be present.

HAWKINS UNABLE TO GIVE BOND

Denied Writ of Habeas Corpus at Cincinnati Hearing

Cincinnati, Ohio, Jan. 26—Morton S. Hawkins was in jail here today in default of $30,000 bond. The indicted president of the Hawkins Mortgage and Loan Company of Portland, Ind., was denied a writ of habeas corpus late Saturday.

He immediately gave notice of appeal and was allowed 15 days in which to file it.

Hawkins sent several telegrams Saturday to friends in an effort to raise the bond.

TONIGHT TO MARK CLOSE OF REVIVAL

Special Services at Christian Church Will End With Sermon Lecture by The Rev. J. D. Waters

NINE ADDITIONS TO CHURCH

The Rev. H. W. Hargett Preaches Second of Sunday Night Sermon Series on "Lost: A Word"

The special revival meetings which have been in progress at the Main Street Christian church, under the direction of the Rev. Joseph D. Waters of Zanesville, O., will close this evening with a sermon lecture on the subject, "The Land Where Jesus Lived."

Interest in church circles centered Sunday in the close of the Centennial observance at the First Presbyterian church, but good attendance characterized the services at all of the churches.

The Rev. H. W. Hargett delivered the second sermon in the series on "That Which is Lost," at St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal church Sunday evening, before a large audience.

There have been nine additions to the Christian church during the week of protracted meetings, eight of which were by conversion and one by letter.

The sermon lecture tonight will be free, it is announced, but a silver offering will be taken at the close. A feature will be a representation of an oriental marriage, and a young man and woman in the audience will be selected to act as the bride and bridegroom. The Rev. Mr. Waters will supply the regular oriental costumes that are used in oriental countries.

The theme of the Rev. Mr. Hargett's sermon at St. Paul's church was "Lost: A Word," and the text was taken from John 6:33, "The words that I speak unto you, they are spirit and they are life," and John 15:7, "If My Words abide in you." The pastor said in part:

"The speaker is Jesus. He is asking us to consider the worth of His words and the danger that they may become 'lost words'."

"What is a word? Answer, a combination of letters, sufficient to express a thought. It is to thought what the body is to the soul—the agent through which it finds expression. All the varied kinds of business, all the arts and the sciences, all literature, all learning, all knowledge are dependent on words."

"Words are a revelation of character. 'By thy words shalt thou be justified, by thy words shalt thou be condemned.' Of Peter, it was said, 'thy speech betrayeth thee.' With equal truth it can be said of every man. A profane man is known by his speech, a worldly man by his words, a scientist, an artist, a poet, a literary man by his vocabulary. A little man has a vocabulary of little words, of limited meaning, a larger man has a vocabulary of words that include not the temporal alone but the eternal."

"Our words react upon ourselves. They intensify the moods and feelings that created them. Give feeling a voice and it tends to create the atmosphere which another breathes and at the same time determines the climate of your own soul. Speak generously and the soul grows larger, speak maliciously and the soul shrinks into something smaller. There are words that bite like serpents and sting like wasps. We may think we have scattered the poison in the world without, in reality we have absorbed it into our own system. On the other hand there are words that soothe and comfort. Continued on Page Two

SAYS VISION IS TOO SHORT AND NARROW

Dr. W. A. Millis Says People Should Take Broader View of Church, at Centennial Service

LOCAL CELEBRATION CLOSES

Hanover President Declares Church Worker of Present Day are the "Merest Pickers"

The vision of the average person is far too short and too narrow, declared Dr. W. A. Millis, president of Hanover college, answering the charges that are commonly made against the church, at the Centennial services at the First Presbyterian church Sunday morning.

People forget, he said, that the church has more than a local significance, and that in recounting its accomplishments they do not go back far enough for their comparisons.

The Centennial celebration, which began Thursday evening with a sermon by Dr. Harry L. Crain of Frankfort, moderator of the Indiana synod closed Sunday night with another sermon by Dr. Millis.

Vocal solos by Harold Hufford of Greenfield and Miss Helen C. Jaehne of this city and a violin solo by Miss Mary Louise Wyatt were features of the closing service, and at the morning service Sunday, Miss Jaehne and B. F. Miller each sang.

At the night service the Rev. Gibson Wilson, the pastor, referred to the fact that the local church was providing a young man for the ministry, in the person of Merl Maupin, son of Mrs. Glen Miller who is studying in McCormick Theological seminary in Chicago.

A meeting devoted to reminiscences of the pioneers of the church was held Saturday evening and members of the congregation recounted some of the incidents that have become treasured church lore.

"We of the present day are the merest pickers in our zeal and stick-tuitiveness in the work of the Master," said Dr. Millis, at the morning hour of worship, in paying tribute to the early founders of the church.

He recited some of the hardships they underwent and described conditions under which they compared with the conveniences of modern times.

In his sermon, Dr. Millis enumerated the charges against the church—that it was not fulfilling its mission, that it lacked popular appeal, that it was devoting too much attention to local problems and that it was losing ground numerically.

In answering the false accusations against the church, Dr. Millis asserted that people who uttered such charges were "merest pickers."

COLD WAVE WARNING IS ISSUED BY BUREAU

Temperature Expected to Drop as Low as Five Degrees Above Zero in This Area Tonight

WILL LAST OVER TUESDAY

The weather bureau today gave warning of the approach of a cold wave, with the mercury falling to zero or below in the north portion, and from 5 to 15 above in this area during the night.

The official forecast stated that cloudy weather would prevail, and that the cold snap on Tuesday would be followed by generally fair weather. The drop was expected early tonight, following a sharp decline in the mercury all morning.

The present cold wave will last over Tuesday, according to the weather department. It is sweeping this way from Canada, where temperatures of from 20 to 30 degrees below zero are now prevailing. Possible relief from the cold spell here may be in sight by Wednesday.

Warm weather over the week-end, and especially Sunday, caused the frozen roads and ice to melt, making many of the highways in this section of the state in a bad condition, which will be made worse by the drop in temperature, causing the roads to freeze rough, and with a glare of ice.

INDIANAPOLIS MAY BUY WATER PLANT

Move Toward Municipal Ownership of Indianapolis Water Company in Prospect at Legislature

A BILL WAS IN PROCESS

Under Provisions Commission Would be Authorized to Advertise for Bids on Utility Service

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 26—A move toward municipal ownership of the plant of the Indianapolis Water company is in prospect at the present session of the legislature, it was learned today.

A bill was in process in the office of the public service commission under which the city of Indianapolis might purchase the property.

The bill, it is said, will be an amendment to section 72 of the act creating the public service commission, which gives the commission authority to fix rates and tolls of utilities.

Under the provisions of the bill, it was learned, the commission would be authorized to advertise for bids on utility service for any city, town or municipality, and would have the right to accept the lowest bid or reject any or all of the bids.

In the event the bids were rejected, the commission would be empowered to authorize the city or town to raise money by bond issue sufficient to purchase the utility and operate it under supervision of the commission.

Condemnation of the property would be made through suit brought by the attorney general of the state.

It is said the measure will be sponsored by Senator Quillon of Indianapolis as a blow at the Indianapolis Water Company for the rate increase it secured after carrying its fight with the public service commission to the federal district court here.

Provisions of the measure as it is now being drafted however, are broad enough to include all municipalities in the state.

words that are full of laughter and words that are full of tears, of sympathy, words that are full of sunshine that banishes the gloom and chill of winter, words that thrill like the sound of a trumpet and words that cheer and brighten all the way. Such are the words of Jesus. They are words of faith and hope and love, words of duty and delight, words of peace and of power, of salvation and of service. Give these words large place in your experience and in your vocabulary and you will find that they are words of life.

"If consciously or unconsciously, you let them become lost words, your own life will be infinitely poorer. Some losses we discover at once. We feel the wrench and mourn the loss. Some of life's greatest losses come so silently that we have no sense of loss. Ringing no bells, sounding no trumpets, great principles have departed and left us in private life, in public affairs, in business, in social relationship, without those fundamental forces which are found in those to whom the words of Christ are authority and life."

The sermon closed with Henry Van Dyke's story of the "Lost Word". When that lost word was found it brought peace, joy, love and service.

PLAN BUS, TRUCK REGULATION BILL

Rep. Hammitt Wants to Make Them Legitimate Competitors With Other Common Carriers

OBJECTS TO SENATE BILL

Under That Bill Busses and Truck Companies Would Have to Prove Necessity Existed

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 26—A bill to regulate common carrier motor busses and trucks in Indiana and to make them legitimate competitors with other common carriers without working a hardship on the bus or truck owners is being planned today for introduction in the state house of representatives by Representative John G. Hammitt, of Bryant.

Hammitt objected to the bill introduced in the Senate by Senator Moorhead providing for public service commission regulation of the busses. He said under the bill, the busses and truck companies would have to prove that a necessity existed for their operation. This would meet opposition from the traction and railroad companies which small bus operators would be unable, in many cases, to meet.

This was one of the chief objections raised in the last legislature against the bus bill that failed to pass at that time. Hammitt said the same objection would come up at the session against the bill that is now introduced.

Hammitt said bus owners believe that they should pay their share for the use of the state highways which they wear down in the operation of their lines and believe that some regulatory measure should be passed. They will oppose the Moorhead bill, however.

Although he had not his bill thoroughly worked out in his mind, he said he was considering putting the busses possibly under the regulation of the state automobile license department.

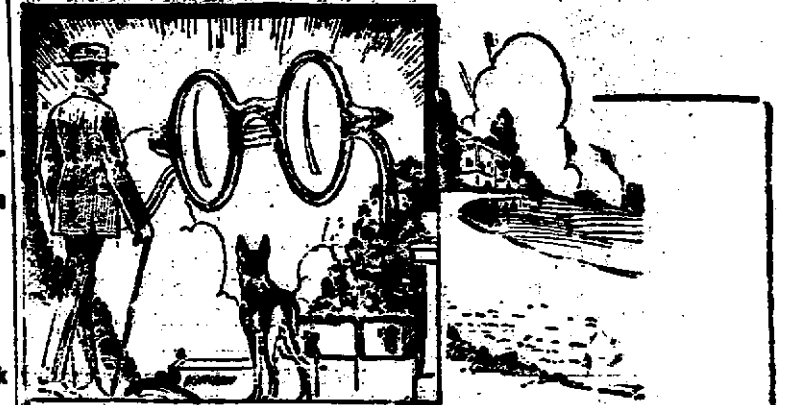

The bill he has in mind would probably increase the license fees to the bus owners or charge a mileage tax. The bus owners would certify their mileage of the route, the number of trips, and the size or capacity of their machines and be charged a rate on this.

Hammitt said he would have the bill worked out for introduction possibly in a few days.

MAY RECEIVE LIQUOR FROM COMMON CARRIER

Cannot Convict Liquor Law Violators on Such Charge, According to Ruling of Judge DuComb

CAUSE OF MUCH DISCUSSION

South Bend, Ind., Jan. 26—It would be almost impossible in Indiana to convict liquor law violators on charges of receiving liquor from a common carrier if the ruling of Judge Chester DuComb in city court here, is taken as a precedent, it was stated by attorneys here today.

Judge DuComb freed George Robertson in whose home police found two quarts of liquor. The judge held that no evidence had been introduced to show the booze had been received from a common carrier or to reveal the identity of the carrier, although Robertson admitted receiving the liquor from a farmer who made it.

The decision, it was said, throws upon prosecutors the responsibility of proving identity of the common carrier in contested cases. It could also require affidavits in the future to read "from common carrier or other carrier" because it is usually impossible to obtain evidence as to the source of supply.

It is now held by attorneys that the decision makes it impossible to convict on such a charge as was filed against Robertson, and that the ruling puts another block in the path of prohibition enforcement in Indiana.

UPSETS MARK THE DISTRICT TOURNNEY

Poor Brand of Basketball Characterizes First Annual Event, Which is Won by Connersville

LIONS DROPPED BY TREEMEN

Many Farces, But Biggest One Was When Greensburg Eliminated Rushville in Semi-Finals

TOURNNEY SCORES

Connersville 34; Winchester 11.
Rushville 48; Brookville 18.
Greensburg 24; Liberty 19.
Connersville 13; Newcastle 8.
Greensburg 32; Rushville 23.
Connersville 16; Greensburg 14.

Tourney upsets, marked throughout with a poor brand of basketball figured prominently in the first annual Sixth District basketball tournament held Saturday at Connersville, in which the host team retained the silver cup, defeating Greensburg in the final game 16 to 14.

Greensburg earned the right to play in the final game by upsetting Rushville's hopes in the semi-finals, and Connersville took Newcastle in a similar manner, with both games upsetting advance "dope".

Most of the basketball games were everything else but good basketball full of rough and tumble fighting, close defenses, poor basket shooting and scarcely little display of any flashy team work.

In the first game of the semi-finals, Connersville and Newcastle displayed the poorest kind of an exhibition, although it was exceedingly fast and held the interest until the final gun. Newcastle made only three field goals in the game, and Connersville made only two, with all of the rest of the points being counted from the foul line.

Both teams were handicapped by close guarding, as neither one could get much of a chance to take the ball down the floor. Connersville led 8 to 4 at the half.

Then the biggest farce of the day came when Rushville and Greensburg took the floor. The Lions put up good ball in the first five minutes and had Greensburg 12 to 2, and it appeared to be a walk-around. When Miller, Rushville's back guard, lost his head and struck at a Greensburg player who had landed on top of him in a fall, he was ejected from the game.

That was the thing to do and Referee Bills should be congratulated upon for his action. It only showed a great weakness on the Rushville team, which from then on began to play ragged ball, and Greensburg took advantage of the weakness and when the first half ended the score was 16 to 12 with the locals having the small margin in the lead.

Then in the last half Rushville kept that lead for seven minutes, and Greensburg passed them at 20 to 19, and from then on, they set the pace, and fought like demons with Sasser, their floor guard throwing the ball in from all angles, and breaking through for under-the-basket shots. The final count was 32 to 23, with Greensburg making most of their points in the last three or four minutes of play.

The line-up and summary:
Greensburg 32 Rushville 23
Downs F Newbold
Kirby F Arbuttle
Ely C Davison
Sasser G McNamara
Westhafer G Miller
Substitutions, Rushville, Wainwright, Lakin, Readle. Field goals, Downs 3, Kirby 2, Ely 4, Sasser 5, Newbold, Arbuttle 2, Davison, Lakin 2, McNamara, Miller, Foul goals, Downs, Ely, Sasser 2, Newbold, Arbuttle, Wainwright, Davison 3, Lakin.

Connersville is to be congratulated for coming through with a victory. After their hard scrimmage and fight in that Newcastle game, it only showed that they could withstand a second hard attack. After all, these tourneys are more or less a test of endurance, and if a team can hold up and fight, they are bound to win.

Greensburg also displayed the old fight that wins games, and a two point margin does not indicate the real strength of either team. When Greensburg played Rushville and piled up the count, the Tree City five put up the same brand of ball they did when they walloped Shelbyville. They were determined to win, and were "hot" on the basket.

The Lions will have another chance to see how far they can go with Greensburg as they play them in that city Friday night. With one defeat and one victory by Greensburg this season, the Lions should be in a mood Friday night to get back some of those points.

The biggest disappointment in the tourney was probably Newcastle, which played poor ball. They showed effects of a hard night before when they held Mamie to 12 points.

When Greensburg played Liberty in the morning game, Liberty came within a few points of winning, and Greensburg showed the poorest form. Their surprise attack on Rushville evidently showed that they were not playing at their best.

Greensburg beat Liberty 5 points; then beat Rushville 9 points, which looks like Liberty is 4 points better than the locals. It also looks like—well, you finish it.

Even Connersville was figuring on Rushville winning that tourney. It was a case of figures lying, that's all.

Good sportsmanship prevailed throughout the tourney. Connersville people extended themselves to show their hospitality to the visitors. The tourney was well handled. The two officials, Fred Bills and John Miller, handled the games to the satisfaction of all, and some of those games were hard ones to handle.

They Were Two of a Kind

The poorest official at the tourney was Coach Wann of Earlham college who was the official score keeper. He was the most unaccommodating and ungentlemanly person that could be employed in that capacity. If he is a sample of athletics at Earlham college, it is a big wonder that they ever get to first base. Alongside of him was E. Pierre Wainwright, sport writer for the Free Press of Connersville. Just what "official" duty he was supposed to hold down, no one knows. On account of visiting newspapers being present, and also because an opposition newspaper in his own city was present, he made it a point to see to it that the line-ups of the teams, changes in the line-up, fouls and the like were not passed along, nor even were questions answered. In other words they were two of a kind. Wainwright in his daily column, emphasizes in every other item, "true sportsmanship," which by the way should be practiced as well as preached.

Even a team that was playing on the floor, was not permitted an assist-

tant score keeper, because the two "What Ams" gave everyone to understand that they could take care of it. One game started in the second half and played for two minutes without either one of them sitting in their places, and the game was stopped to wait on them to come in from the outside.

It is a shame to spoil a good tourney, with other good officials by having a cross-word puzzle artist keeping score. It wouldn't have been so bad, if he had been deaf and dumb.

SIDE LIGHTS WINS OUT!

Ole Side Lights scored a victory. E. I. Higgs, the sport conductor of the Connersville News, who by the way was largely responsible for the new gym in that city, was the first to break the news of the tourney. He flashed an extra, on the street at ten o'clock, and beat all other competition by a few hours, so the Free Press didn't profit a great deal by playing "dog" on the score bench.

The Richmond Item was represented by Mrs. Ed Keller who was kept busy keeping track of the points, but the rest of the scribes saw to it that she got the line-ups and other information, regardless of the stonewall defense of the experts.

The next tourney will be held a year from now at Newcastle.

Tim Campbell, motor of the Shelbyville team, was present for some of the games. If his Canals had been entered, there would have been little doubt but what they could have sailed through because of the poor brand of ball played by the other teams.

DING SAT OFFERS FEW GOOD COMMENTS

Dear Hittin' 'Em—

How about a rule to compel basketball players to wear boxing gloves?

What is the use to worry about one little old basketball game?

Remember the harder they fall, the higher they bounce.

Maybe it was the telegram Lakin got from Ft. Wayne just before the game.

We made more points in two games than any other team made in three. Who did the best scoring?

Didn't Davison look "scrumptious" at center?

Close observers of the game said Rushville was by far the best team and I am not quoting any authority from Rushville.

Experience is a dear school, but some people will not learn any place else.

Pat Miller on the back, he hates it worse than you do.

When Greensburg started their rally wouldn't it have been a fine time for Mack to have called time out.

Maybe it was the collapse that did it.

When we go to Greensburg next Friday we will make Tarazon take Sheila and all the rest of his wild animals and go back to the jungles.

Connersville was not rejoicing over the defeat of Rushville but they were tickled almost senseless over the fact that their pets would not have to meet the Lions in the finals. Deep down in their hearts they knew what the result of that game would be.

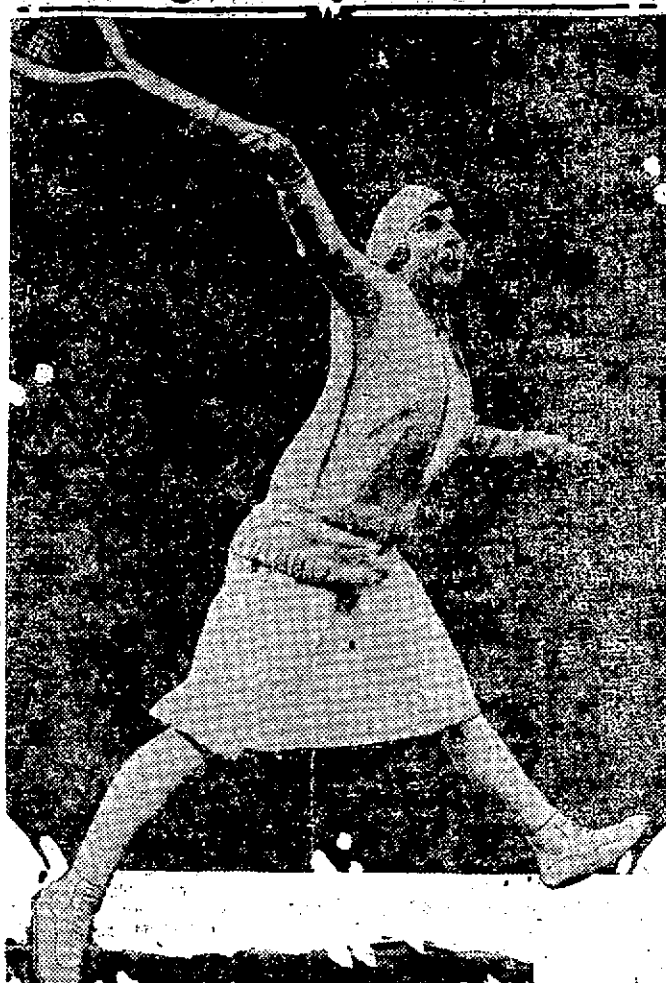

Score of the Connersville-Newcastle game was, one touch down and three drop kicks for Cville—13; one touch down and one touch back for Newcastle—8. Newcastle was penalized more than Cville.

Why not take the "burg" off of Greensburg—no use trying to take the "green" out of it.

Lenglen Plays in Form

Here is a late picture of Miss Suzanne Lenglen. She looks mighty well for a person reputed very ill, probably out of tennis for good. Perhaps her improvement in health is due to the fact that Helen Wills is in California, not Europe. Recently she made her first appearance in a singles match since she retired in June. Her health was so poor she didn't lose a game.

How to Learn to Run

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(Copyright 1925, by United Press)
(CHAPTER II.)

New York, Jan. 26—Paavo Nurmi, the Finnish runner who won four events at the Olympic games in Paris last summer and who is generally regarded as the fastest and most perfect runner that ever lived is a very likeable chap. If he could speak English he would be much more entertaining than he is when he is forced to get it and send it through an interpreter. Nurmi speaks no more English now than he did when he was in Antwerp in 1920, but he understands more.

Nurmi never will make a teacher or a track coach. In the first place he doesn't believe in coaching, and also he has his own ideas and theories about running, but he maintains they are only his personal ideas and he does not believe that they would apply to general cases.

When asked what he would suggest to young American boys as the proper way to learn how to run, he replied he couldn't offer any lessons or he couldn't teach any one how to run.

He was willing, however, to point out why so many American youngsters can't run faster than they do.

"Your boys," he said, "go about it with too much haste. They burn themselves out too quickly. The most important thing is to have a body to carry you over any distance that you want to run. American boys seem to have the idea of getting speed before they build up their body to endure the strain of running. I ran for four years, principally for the amusement and the exercise. I gained by it, before I got any idea that I could run. I trained for three years for the 1920 Olympic games and I ran for four years before I tried for fast time. In that long period of preliminary training, I built up my body and acquired a natural form. When the time came for me to try for speed I had both the mechanical and the physical essentials."

Nurmi was asked to explain why he selected a style of almost flat-footed running that is frowned upon by most of the best American coaches. It has been said that he made a careful study of styles and invented one of his own that was a combination of all the fine points of the form of other star distance runners.

"I don't know what my style is," he replied. "I only know that it is the form that came to me naturally when I was trying to get a stride and a style that enabled me to get the most distance with the least exertion. I didn't study any one's style and I didn't do any copying, as Kohlenstein was the only great runner I ever saw before I went to Antwerp."

"The trouble with a lot of coaching," Nurmi says, "is that a runner is pushed along too fast. The coach teaches him in a month or so what it would take him a year to acquire by himself and he gets the idea that he can develop into a champion at the same hasty rate. Of course, if a boy had some kind of a defective style in running, he might never get along without some one to show him his error, but if he was serious enough about it and had the natural qualifications, he would work out the mistake himself without knowing it."

Veteran American athletic trainers have always maintained that mileage was the most important part of the training of any athlete. Some track coaches insisted that the only way to learn how to run was to run and run and then run some more. Some of the most successful rowing coaches have followed the same theory in forcing some of their crews to paddle at least twenty-five miles. Nurmi has the same theory about mileage.

"If a boy wants to learn how to run he can only acquire that knowledge by running," he says. "I would suggest to young American boys who have a fondness for track sports that they decide upon the distance best fitted to them. They tell me that Joie Ray, one of the finest runners I have ever seen, wanted to be a sprinter and when he didn't succeed he turned to the quarter-mile and failing there he became one of the greatest middle distance runners."

"If you decide that you want to run a mile, go out and run a mile," he continued. "Run another mile and then another mile. Don't try for speed. At first regulate your pace so that you will be fresh when you finish. You can't develop natural style when you are tired. Even if you have to trot for a mile keep so that you feel like doing another mile. You should run miles and miles in that easy fashion until you feel that you could increase your pace, but don't get the idea too soon that you are ready to go out after speed. Every mile that you run without calling upon your reserve strength will build up your body, increase your endurance, develop your lungs and legs and will develop a free and easy style of running. I didn't try for speed until 1916, and it wasn't until 1919 that I really reached the point where I felt like pushing myself. Of course the development of an American runner would be much faster, because in Finland we have only a few months in which we can train, and in this country athletes can work almost the year around."

"My advice to American boys would be—Work slowly. Don't burn yourself out trying for speed. Build up slowly and you will be building well, and above all, if you want to become a runner, you will have to run and run. No painter ever became a master by using his brushes an hour a day."

As his ideas about running for are so simple and so fundamentally sound, Nurmi's theories about the other important factor of training—keeping in condition—are almost as simple.

Bentonville 20; Alquina 17.
Bentonville 22; Everton 17 (finals).
Considerable interest was displayed in the Fayette county basketball tourney, held Saturday at Bentonville in which Glenwood and Fairview were entered. Bentonville, the host team, won the cup by the score of 22 to 17. The officials for the tourney were Russell Titsworth of this city and Fred Cook of Falmouth.

Laporte—In divorce complaint William W. Clark said his wife, Clara B. Clark, stayed out at nights and would not prepare his meals.

Brazil—Reuben Brown, awarded $1,000 from the Carnegie fund to save the life of a fellow miner, was ordered to pay $75 to his wife and child on a desertion charge in court.

Bloomington—What is believed to be the oldest log cabin in Monroe county was torn down recently 3 miles west of here by Zwingle Curry. It is believed to have been erected in 1829.

The Webb high school girls basketball team won the cup here Saturday in the Rush County Girl's basketball tourney, and New Salem was the runner up, with the final game being a thriller all of the way, and the score 16 to 15.

At the end of the first half, New Salem was leading 11 to 6, and took a big rally in the last half of the part of the Webb girls to stay their comeback, which came in last two minutes of play. The score was 15 to 10 with New Salem leading, and it looked good for the Salem girls, when Webb began to toss the ball as fast as the ball tossed up at center, making field goals in succession then across with the one point, 16 to 15.

Several good games featured the tourney, and it was a success, with many of the girls loyally supported, and was as big as expected.

Rheumatism

"Good-bye old crutch!"
THERE IS positively no longer any excuse for suffering the agonies of rheumatism! Especially in the autumn of your life, when the vital organs weaken, impurities multiply and linger in the muscles and joints, as never before. It is now, just now, when you cannot afford to guess. No day returns!

Here is a joyous fact which can mean to you a fond farewell forever to all the miseries, the tortures, the body-twisting pains that you have suffered from the demon of rheumatism. It is a fact that rheumatism means "blood poverty." It is a fact with the increase of red-cells in your blood, impurities are destroyed. It is a fact that S.S.S. will help Nature build these red-blood-cells! S.S.S. is one of the most powerful blood cleansers in existence. Its results in thousands of rheumatic cases have been nothing short of amazing! The medicinal ingredients of S.S.S. are purely vegetable. This is very important to remember! What can be more inspiring, more wonderful than to see the shackles of pain released from your struggling body, swellings, lingering pains, stiffness of joints and muscles all disappear; your stomach made strong; your face pink with the old sweet-heart glow; your blood enriched and your cheeks more plump as they used to be. You can do it! Take S.S.S., the great destroyer of rheumatic impurities.

S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

S. GLENN YOUNG IS KILLED

Herrin Townspeople See Passing of Warfare With His Death

Herrin, Ill., Jan. 26—Bitter warfare in Herrin—the red town of bloody Williamson county—ceased with the passing of S. Glenn Young, the stormy petrel of the Klan ranks, in the opinion of many local townspeople.

Not only did Young go down before the bullets of hate, but one of the leaders of the opposition—Ore Thomas—also is dead.

Several hundred filed by Young's body in the morgue yesterday paying tribute to the zealous leader of the hooded organization.

Two other Klansmen—T. D. Forbes and Homer Warner, were also killed in the gun battle.

Pulling together

In this busy industrial and agricultural region that stretches from the Great Lakes to the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers, the Big Four Route serves 600 communities.

Our day's work is to provide dependable, efficient and economical transportation service, in order that these communities may successfully compete in the Nation's markets and share fully in the Nation's prosperity.

Our welfare and yours are inseparably linked. Neither of us can grow without the other. We can't shift burdens to each other; we must shoulder them together.

The cost of providing railroad service—like the cost of any other necessity of life—is paid by the user. Legislation that unnecessarily increases the cost of railroad service becomes a burden on the public—either in higher rates or in deteriorated service.

We can't lift ourselves by our bootstraps.

COMPARE YOUR BILLS

Some folks are led to believe that great savings can be effected by buying at no-service stores. All we ask is, compare your bills, price for price, quality for quality, SERVICE for SERVICE. We believe that you will find that the cash saving has been practically nothing, that a great many times you have been disappointed in the quality of the goods bought, and besides you have missed the benefit of the advantages we offer in the way of service.

SAYS VISION IS TOO SHORT AND NARROW

statements were too narrow and too short in their vision.

Dr. Millis pointed out that in 1890 only fourteen percent of the adult population belonged to church and that now forty-five percent of the total population of the United States were active members of some Christian church.

He also called attention to the fact that the church was not exclusive or aristocratic as has been charged, but that it was just the opposite—that its doors were open to everyone, regardless of class or station in life.

Dr. Millis enumerated the many activities of the church in extending the kingdom of God on earth—hospitals, colleges and home and foreign missions.

Eighty percent of the educational institutions offering a strictly college education are supported by the church, he said. How the negro problem, the mountaineer problem, the immigrant problem and the extension of Christianity in foreign lands are being met was recounted to show that the church was not failing, but was active and alert to its mission.

"The church is the body of Christ," Dr. Millis stated. "It is His legs and His feet. His arms, eyes and ears, and it was established to carry on the work that He started.

"It is here to establish justice and mercy and to heal physically, intellectually and spiritually."

Letters from former pastors and members temporarily away were read at the Saturday evening meeting, including the following:

The Rev. J. F. Cowling, New Lexington, O.; John S. Abernethy of Miami, Florida, a grandson of Dr. Horatio Gates Sexton, the first person to unite with the church by confession of faith; the Rev. D. Ira Lambert, head of the religious education department of Tulsa (Okla.) university; J. L. Cowing, in Miami, Florida for the winter; the Rev. Walter L. Kunkel of Cincinnati, and Mrs. Kunkel, and the Rev. Walter H. Reynolds, pastor of the Liberty Presbyterian church.

After two numbers by Miss Jaehne "Love's Old Sweet Song" and "When You and I were Young Maggie" which were very appropriate to the occasion Mrs. Phil Wilk, who wrote the historical sketch in the souvenir Centennial program, related some incidents regarding the early history of the church, which she had not included in the sketch.

Mrs. Wilk said that the pioneers were evidently hungry for The Word, as one family living ten miles up Patrook came to church regularly on horseback, when the roads were too bad for a wagon. Each family sat together in pews, she said, and in the second church, the pews had doors.

William B. Laughlin, Rushville's first citizen who gave the ground for the first church and was a charter member, had fourteen boys and four girls, Mrs. Wilk stated, and added that she presumed his family occupied two pews.

Mrs. Wilk called attention to the strict discipline of the church, which resulted in men being called before the session for drinking, swearing, and non-attendance.

The Rev. Mr. Sickle was the first ordained minister, and his wife was the daughter of Mr. Coe, who came to Indianapolis and instituted a Sunday school when there were only four others in existence, Mrs. Wilk said.

"The first idea of the Sunday school was to teach children to read," continued Mrs. Wilk, "and I presume that we had a Sunday school here early because of the influence of Mrs. Sickle's father. The church always stood for education. Mr. Laughlin taught the first school in Rushville."

In closing, Mrs. Wilk named over some of the early Sunday school teachers who had been influential in building up the Sunday school.

Mrs. Annie Pugh-Dancer of Camlen, O., a former Rushville woman, said that her earliest recollections, were of the First Presbyterian church in Rushville.

"One of the greatest influences for good in my life has been the memories of this church," she stated, and told a story about Lizzie VonToon, a devout member of the church, who was very much distressed one day when she lost her umbrella at a meeting of the Band of Workers.

"I don't understand what could have become of it," she was quoted as saying, "because everyone here was a Presbyterian."

Mrs. Rena Warner recalled the names of some of the children of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Laughlin and said that her mother had told her that the pews not only had doors, but that each one had a lamp on it.

Mrs. John F. Moses stated that the church used to have a wonderful choir which was devoted to unselfish service to the church.

"Men of affairs were in the choirs of those days," she recounted. "I wonder if the singing school didn't have more to do with that than the public school music of today does with singing."

Some of the people in the choirs of earlier days were David Graham, Lon Sexton, Jesse Spann, Judge W. A. Cullen, Anna Graham, Kate Pugh and Sadie Pugh. Mrs. Moses said, and mentioned Marsh Carmichael, who was the faithful organist of the church for so many years.

"We had wonderful prayer meetings in those days," she continued. "The elders attended regularly. I remember that Judge Cullen once said at a prayer meeting, 'I am what I am by the grace of God, and if it were not for Him, I do not know what I would be.'"

Judge Douglas Morris said he often wondered how different Rushville would have been, if it had not been for the Presbyterian church. Not that he did not revere the memory of the founders of other churches, he added. He commented on the influence Dr. Horatio Gates Sexton and his children and children's children had had on the church and the community and on the fact that Finly Bigger, former governor of Indiana, had been a member of the church. He declared that Rushville should erect a monument to Mr. Bigger.

"What would be the character of Rushville if it had not been for the Sextons and Biggers and Laughlins?" he asked. "There was no snobbery about them. The democratic

Mourns Bandit

Nellie Dawson, 17-year-old Den Moines (Ia.) girl, is mourning for her bandit husband, William E. Wright. They had been married just two weeks when he held up a bank in New Orleans and killed a policeman. He died in Mobile, Ala., in a gun battle with detectives. Nellie now is in jail in New Orleans, but it is thought she will be sent back to her people.

spirit today is due to these men of strong character and high intellect, and we should revere their memory. As we celebrate our Centennial, we have a right to be proud of the record of the Presbyterian church."

"While I revere the memory of the pioneers," stated S. L. Trabue, "there are many who served more recently, who have left their mark on the community, and I want to pay a tribute to the memory of one who served well during the last quarter of a century. For a number of years it was my privilege to sit at the feet of our friend, that splendid woman, Mrs. Lon Link, who taught Sunday school faithfully and had a most beneficial influence on the lives of many boys."

Mrs. James Brooks related some incidents regarding the early church life, and in closing the service, the Rev. Mr. Wilson expressed the devout wish that "we can so live that 100 years hence someone can say, God bless their memory."
